Who Does What: My AI Lineup

Claude is home base. Every other tool runs one errand and brings the result back to Claude.

HOME BASE

Claude

Writes and edits devotionals, workbooks, scripts, and product listings. Checks Scripture. Keeps my parking lot and tells me when I drift. Everything finishes here.

ERRAND 1

Perplexity

Researches with sources: facts, statistics, what similar products sell for, and checking historical claims. It finds. It does not write my final copy.

ERRAND 2

Gemini

Lives inside Google, where my Drive is. Finds, sorts, and organizes files and builds trackers in Sheets. It does not write my content.

ERRAND 3

ChatGPT

Makes images: covers, mockups, Big Boy pictures. I paste in the brand look every time. I check every image before I use it.

BENCHED: GROK. Skip it unless I want to see what is trending on X. Fewer tools means fewer unfinished starts.

The 4 Rules

1. One project at a time. Say it out loud: "Right now I'm finishing _____."
2. A new idea gets parked, not started. One list, one Google Doc: Parking Lot.
3. One errand per tool, per project. Ask it, take the answer to Claude, close the tab.
4. Done means done. Finished product, listing written, 3 posts, next step known.

When a New Idea Hits

1. Park it in the list.
2. Look at my current project.
3. Ask: "Is this finished or sellable yet?" If no, go back to it.

Protect myself: I don't paste my sister's story, my current recovery status, or anyone's private details into any tool. Those stay mine to share when I choose.

You survived. Now we rebuild.
